100% VEGAN | BUILT FOR INDIAN KITCHENS | BEGINNER FRIENDLY

Welcome

This 30-day plan shows you exactly what to eat each day to reach roughly 70 to 95 grams of protein on a 100% vegan diet, using food you can buy at any Indian kirana store, sabzi mandi or supermarket. No imported superfoods, no protein powders required, no complicated recipes.

Every day has four meals: breakfast, lunch, an evening snack and dinner. Each meal lists its approximate protein so you can see where your protein comes from.

Who this plan is for

- Vegans and vegetarians who want to cut dairy and still get enough protein
- People trying to eat healthier, build strength or lose fat with simple home food
- Busy people who want a ready menu and a ready shopping list
- Beginners who have never planned a high-protein vegan week

How to use this guide

- Read the Protein Basics and Pantry Setup pages first (10 minutes).
- Do your Sunday prep (soak legumes, make chutneys, chop vegetables) using the prep guide.
- Buy groceries using the weekly grocery lists at the back.
- Follow the daily plan. If a meal does not suit you, swap it with another meal of the same type from any other day.
- Use the tracker page to tick off days and note how you feel.

Important: Protein numbers are approximate and depend on brand, portion size and cooking method. Calories are not fixed - eat smaller or larger portions of rice and roti to suit your goal. This guide is general information, not medical advice. If you have a medical condition, are pregnant, have kidney problems, thyroid issues or any allergy (including soy or peanuts), consult your doctor or a registered dietitian before changing your diet.

Vegan Protein Basics (Indian Foods)

Most Indian kitchens already have excellent plant proteins. The trick is to include one main protein source in every meal and combine legumes (dal, rajma, chana) with grains (roti, rice) across the day.

Approximate protein in common Indian foods

Food	Serving	Protein (g)
Soya chunks (nutrela type)	50 g dry	~25 - 26
Soya granules (keema)	40 g dry	~20
Firm tofu	100 g	~8 - 12
Rajma, cooked	1 cup	~13 - 15
Kala/white chana (chole), cooked	1 cup	~13 - 15
Toor / moong / masoor dal, cooked	1 cup	~11 - 14
Moong sprouts	1 cup	~3 - 4
Besan (gram flour)	1/2 cup	~10
Sattu (roasted gram flour)	3 tbsp (30 g)	~6 - 7
Roasted chana	30 g	~6
Peanuts	30 g	~7 - 8
Peanut butter (no sugar)	2 tbsp	~7
Soy milk (unsweetened)	250 ml	~7 - 8
Pumpkin seeds	1 tbsp	~3
Whole-wheat roti	1 medium	~3
Cooked rice	1 cup	~4
Oats	40 g	~5

Simple rules that make the plan work

- Protein first: build each plate around dal, legumes, tofu or soya, then add roti or rice and vegetables.
- Eat protein 4 times a day (about 18 to 30 g per meal) instead of one huge serving at dinner.
- Soak and sprout: soaking beans overnight and cooking them well improves digestion and reduces gas. Add a pinch of hing (asafoetida), ajwain or jeera for comfort.
- Add vitamin C (lemon, amla, tomato, guava) to meals to help absorb iron from plant foods.
- Tea and coffee: avoid drinking them with main meals because they reduce iron absorption. Have them 1 hour away from meals.
- Drink water - at least 2.5 to 3 litres a day, especially when you increase fibre and protein.

Vegan checklist: Skip paneer, curd/dahi, ghee, butter, milk, khoya, cream and honey. Replace with tofu, soy milk, groundnut or mustard oil, cashew paste, and jaggery or dates. Check packaged breads, biscuits, rotis from restaurants and sweets for milk or ghee.

Nutrients Every Vegan Should Watch

A well-planned vegan diet can be healthy at any age, but a few nutrients need special attention. Talk to your doctor about testing and supplements.

- Vitamin B12: Plant foods do not reliably provide B12. Most vegans need a B12 supplement or fortified foods. Ask your doctor for the right dose and get your levels tested.
- Iron: Eat dals, rajma, chana, spinach (palak), methi, sesame, pumpkin seeds and jaggery with a source of vitamin C. Cook in an iron kadhai when possible.
- Calcium: Include ragi, sesame (til), calcium-set tofu, fortified soy milk, amaranth (rajgira) and green leafy vegetables.
- Omega-3: Add 1 tbsp ground flax seed or chia daily and a few walnuts. Ask your doctor about algae-based supplements.
- Vitamin D: Get safe sun exposure and have your level checked. Many Indians are low regardless of diet.
- Iodine and zinc: Use iodised salt and include pumpkin seeds, legumes and whole grains.

A note on soy

Soya chunks, soya granules, tofu and soy milk are used in moderation in this plan (usually one soy-based item per day). Soy is safe for most people. If you have a thyroid condition, hormone-related condition or soy allergy, ask your doctor before eating soy regularly. You can replace soya with extra dal, chana, rajma or sprouts.

Pantry Setup

Stock these once and you can cook most of the plan with only fresh vegetables each week.

Category	Items
Legumes and dals	Toor dal, moong dal (yellow and whole green), masoor dal, chana dal, urad dal, kala chana, white chana (kabuli), rajma, lobia
Soy and protein	Soya chunks, soya granules, firm tofu (weekly), unsweetened fortified soy milk
Flours and grains	Whole-wheat atta, besan, sattu, jowar/bajra/ragi flour, oats, dalia, poha, rava/sooji, rice (brown or regular), bajra
Nuts and seeds	Raw peanuts, roasted chana, peanut butter (no sugar), flax seeds, chia seeds, pumpkin seeds, sesame, walnuts
Spices	Turmeric, red chilli powder, coriander powder, cumin, mustard seeds, garam masala, chana masala, kasuri methi, hing, ajwain, black pepper, chaat masala, amchur
Oils	Groundnut or mustard oil, a small amount of coconut oil
Others	Tamarind, jaggery, dates, lemon, ginger, garlic, green chillies, curry leaves, tomato puree, makhana

Sunday Prep (60 to 90 minutes)

- Soak rajma, chana, kala chana and lobia overnight as needed for the week (they keep 4 to 5 days cooked in the fridge in an airtight container).
- Pressure-cook a big batch of dal and one legume; freeze extra in portions.
- Make 2 chutneys: mint-coriander and roasted peanut chutney (made without curd).
- Press and cube tofu; marinate half in tikka masala (turmeric, chilli, lemon, oil, spices).
- Chop onions, cabbage, carrots and capsicum; wash and store greens wrapped in a cloth.
- Roast chana and peanuts for snacks; make sattu mix ready in a jar.
- Prepare besan and moong batters on the morning you use them (they ferment poorly and are best fresh).

Key Recipes

These core recipes appear again and again in the menu. Adjust spice and salt to taste.

Tofu Bhurji (Scramble)

Serves 1-2

Ingredients: 150 g firm tofu, 1 onion, 1 tomato, 1 green chilli, 1/2 tsp turmeric, 1/2 tsp cumin, 1/2 tsp garam masala, 1 tsp oil, salt, coriander

Method: Heat oil, add cumin, then onion and chilli; cook till soft. Add tomato and spices and cook 3 minutes. Crumble in the tofu, mix and cook 5 to 6 minutes. Finish with coriander and lemon.

Tip: Press tofu in a clean cloth for 10 minutes to remove water for a firmer texture.

Besan Chilla

Serves 1

Ingredients: 1/2 cup besan, 1/2 cup water, 1 small onion, 1 tomato, green chilli, coriander, 1/4 tsp ajwain, turmeric, salt, oil for the pan

Method: Whisk besan with water into a smooth, pourable batter. Add chopped vegetables and spices. Pour a ladle on a hot non-stick tawa, spread thin, cook with a little oil until golden on both sides. Makes about 3 chillas.

Tip: Add 1 tbsp ground flax or a handful of grated cabbage for extra nutrition.

Moong Dal Chilla with Tofu Filling

Serves 1

Ingredients: 1/2 cup yellow moong dal soaked 3 hours, 1 green chilli, 1 inch ginger, salt, 80 g crumbled tofu, spices

Saving Money

- Dals, besan, soya chunks, chana, rajma and peanuts are among the cheapest protein per rupee. Buy them in bulk.
- Tofu and soy milk are the costliest items. Reduce tofu to 2 to 3 times a week and use soya chunks, sattu and dal on other days.
- Buy seasonal local vegetables and fruit; frozen peas are cheap and convenient.
- Make chutneys, sattu mix and roasted snacks at home instead of buying packaged snacks.
- Cook double portions of dal and legumes and freeze to save time and gas.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can I really get enough protein without paneer or whey? Yes. With dals, legumes, soya, tofu, sattu and peanuts, most people can reach their protein needs. Your exact requirement depends on age, weight, activity level and health, so ask a doctor or dietitian.

Will this plan help me lose weight? The plan is high in protein and fibre, which makes you feel full. Weight loss depends on total calories, so adjust rice, roti, oil and nuts to your goal. Do not follow extreme calorie cuts without medical guidance.

I get gas from beans and dal. Soak them overnight, discard the soaking water, cook well, and add hing, ajwain or ginger. Increase portions slowly over 1 to 2 weeks.

What about eating out or travelling? Look for dal, chana, rajma (confirm no butter or cream), idli-sambar, poha with peanuts, sprouts chaat and roasted chana. Ask for oil instead of ghee or butter. Carry roasted chana, peanuts and sattu.

I do not like tofu. Replace it with soya chunks, extra dal, chana, rajma, sprouts or besan-based dishes. The protein totals will stay similar.

Can I do this plan during fasting days? Fasting diets vary widely. This plan is not designed for strict fasts; adapt it with your doctor's advice.
